

Our Water Disclosure Journey: From Local Engagement to Global Strategies Mike Glade, Molson-Coors

Mike Glade from Molson Coors Brewing Company will discuss why water matters to Molson Coors, how local lessons and global challenges have impacted internal stewardship strategies and what all stakeholders should be doing. Litigation versus collaboration, efficiency versus risk and looking outside of direct operations into the supply chain all influence the potential impacts to their operations and the communities in which they engage. Through participation and partnerships with global organizations like the United Nations CEO Water Mandate, Carbon Disclosure Project's Water Disclosure initiative and the Beverage Industry Environmental Roundtable, Molson Coors is reducing their own water risks, those within the communities in which they operate and those of their valued supply chain partners (e.g., agricultural suppliers). Through these collaborations a reduction in redundant efforts has led to more effective common goals for shared rewards!