Hello Derek,

Thank you for sending this information and addressing the erosion gully issue. I have scanned the email and photo documentation into the file for this site. This area is not due for an inspection for a few years but if you guys feel the vegetation has well established and that reclamation is complete, you may submit a bond release application. My recommendation would be to wait until the spring/early summer next year during the growing season to request a release.

Thanks again, and let me know if you have questions.

Jared
