Thank you for your guidance Mr Trujillo in my application process. When I submit a mineing application what all information is necessary for me to have a high probability of getting my reclamation bonds and mineing permit on my first submitted application?

Mr. Beck,

As long as all information required under the application as well as our Rules and Regulations have been provided and found acceptable by the Division, a permit for coal mining can be granted. The reclamation bond is posted by the mining company (or permittee) and must be posted before any disturbance can occur. The following link is to the Colorado's coal mining Rules and Regulations which is referenced by our initial incompleteness letter that is attached.

Regulations of the Colorado Mined Land Reclamation Board for Coal Mining:
