Mrs. Christensen,

The 2.5 acres is what was requested by LRM and it is my understanding they were given this acreage number by Weld County. If more land is to be affected by construction activities that are not mine-related, DRMS would consider releasing additional acreage. LRM would have to submit another acreage release request for any additional area to be released. I would ask that once you finalize the plan with Weld County that you work with them and LRM to define the acreage that needs to be released. Once they know this information, LRM can submit another acreage release request.

Good Morning

I left a message for Peter yesterday and sent a email. I do not understand how you are releasing 2.5 acres? Please explain. We has another bridge proposal in the last week, please explain how you came to your calculations. We will need more than the 2.5 acres released who gave you that number since we are all still working out the details? We are going to need the north side and west side of the lake released for this 18 month project with the county and to be able to access our house safely. Where did the 2.5 come from since I just looked at a new drawing last week?

Sincerely
Jamie Christensen
