Dear Dustin,

I am responding for Todd Fisher and Perry Neil. Crossfire Aggregate Services operates the mine for LBCR, LLC. Perry will use this thread and your email to forward a copy of the picture showing the restored sign.

We found that the sign had been blown down during the high winds we had in the Ignacio area in late July or early August, and found it blown into the bar ditch.

The sign has been replaced (and reinforced and updated phone numbers included), as you will see in the picture.

We understand this was the only deficiency you found during your inspection. Please let us

We will all be meeting hopefully in the next few weeks, at the site to discuss future work. Although there has been little material produced in the past year or so (working off stockpiles of processed material to supply low demand in the past several years) demand is expected to go up early next year for various projects in the area, and we want to look at requesting reclamation release of a portion of the area (Area D) and make sure we have a good program for following the mining plan moving to the northern part of the permit area from Area C into Area B. Todd wants to be able to start farming portions of his land there, and perhaps work on improving land outside the permit area. Please let me know if we need to submit a hard copy of our response and the photo, or a formal PDF response.

Nathan
