Amber,

I would like to request more time to complete the corrective actions as there has been too much snow to find one of the corners. Luis had found 3 of the corners prior to the first snow but that area just does not melt. I had a sign made and put it in last time I was there. Photos are attached.

Thanks,

Ron Montano

A wide-angle landscape photograph showing a snow-covered hillside under a blue sky with scattered clouds. Several young pine trees are planted in rows on the slope. In the foreground, a gravel pit area is visible with muddy water and exposed rocks. A white sign on a metal post stands in the center of the frame.
