We spoke with Dawn Anderson in regard to the access and Weld County will support the north access but she indicated we needed to also get approval from the Town of Kersey since they annexed the road we are accessing onto. We have provided information to Danna Ortiz (Planner for Town of Kersey) and we are waiting for a response from her on the north access. Our traffic engineer has also contacted the Town of Kersey's engineer and is waiting for information back in regard to his traffic study and the north access. As soon as I get a response back from the Town I will let you know.

I did get in contact with the vibration monitoring folks and they are providing pricing back on a permanent unit as well as temporary monitoring costs. We will let you know as soon as we have some more information hopefully next week.

Stacey –

We are waiting for Dawn Anderson to respond to our north access information we provided to her. As soon as we hear back we will let you know. I have calls into the vibration monitoring folks but again waiting to hear back from them on monitors for temporary and permanent locations.

I did get information from SWCA on the shovel test and that is attached.

Good afternoon, Brandon.

I have had a chance to consult with Roberta and she is still in the process of obtaining an independent engineering evaluation. While we acknowledge your offer to provide a written agreement, there is not much recourse for my Client should we enter into an agreement and your client defaults. The county would not be obligated to only approve the permit on our agreed terms and economic damages would not provide adequate relief.

Further, she continues to be concerned about the long-term impacts of what we understand to be the end use of water storage. Has your team given that additional review beyond that provided or additional explanation to what has been provided that would better address these concerns?

Thank you,

Hi Stacey,

As I understand it, a condition of the permit would be Todd's provision of the vibration monitoring system, and the land use permit (via Weld County and/or the Town of Kersey) would require access from the north.

We can provide a draft agreement that would commit Todd to these two items. In exchange, Ms. Smith would withdraw her objection to the DRMS permit and commit to not objecting to the land use permit.

Please let me know if we should provide a draft agreement. Thanks.

Good morning, Brandon.

My client is not ready to withdraw her objections at this point. We would prefer to have something more concrete than the willingness to "pursue access" to the north. Further, my client is considering an independent engineering evaluation to address her concerns and has been advised by a potential engineer that engaging them would be most advisable following the state's review.

Hi Stacey,

It appears that Todd Bean and J.C. York have addressed your client's primary concerns regarding the mining permit for Ogilvy River Farm's property.

First, Mr. Bean will pursue access from ORF's easement to north of Ms. Smith's property. Second, ORF will install a permanent vibration monitoring system to address Ms. Smith's concerns regarding her propane tank. Third, Mr. York provided information that should alleviate her concerns regarding archeological items in the area to be mined.

Mr. Bean would like to know if Ms. Smith intends to withdraw her objection to the permit application before September 30. And, if not, he would like to know what concerns remain.

Thank you.

Stacey –

We met with Town of Kersey and they will support the north access so we will change the access for the pit traffic to the north. We also confirmed with our vibration monitoring consultant that a permanent vibration monitor will work and Ogilvy River Farm, LLC is willing to install one near the propane tank and have it setup where we can download the information and have the vibration monitoring consultant review provide it to all parties.

Please let us know when you could be available to discuss.

Stacey –

We spoke with Dawn Anderson in regard to the access and Weld County will support the north access but she indicated we needed to also get approval from the Town of Kersey since they annexed the road we are accessing onto. We have provided information to Danna Ortiz (Planner for Town of Kersey) and we are waiting for a response from her on the north access. Our traffic engineer has also contacted the Town of Kersey's engineer and is waiting for information back in regard to his traffic study and the north access. As soon as I get a response back from the Town I will let you know.

I did get in contact with the vibration monitoring folks and they are providing pricing back on a permanent unit as well as temporary monitoring costs. We will let you know as soon as we have some more information hopefully next week.

Stacey –

We spoke with Dawn Anderson in regard to the access and Weld County will support the north access but she indicated we needed to also get approval from the Town of Kersey since they annexed the road we are accessing onto. We have provided information to Danna Ortiz (Planner for Town of Kersey) and we are waiting for a response from her on the north access. Our traffic engineer has also contacted the Town of Kersey's engineer and is waiting for information back in regard to his traffic study and the north access. As soon as I get a response back from the Town I will let you know.

I did get in contact with the vibration monitoring folks and they are providing pricing back on a permanent unit as well as temporary monitoring costs. We will let you know as soon as we have some more information hopefully next week.

Hi Stacey,

It appears that Todd Bean and J.C. York have addressed your client's primary concerns regarding the mining permit for Ogilvy River Farm's property.

First, Mr. Bean will pursue access from ORF's easement to north of Ms. Smith's property. Second, ORF will install a permanent vibration monitoring system to address Ms. Smith's concerns regarding her propane tank. Third, Mr. York provided information that should alleviate her concerns regarding archeological items in the area to be mined.

Mr. Bean would like to know if Ms. Smith intends to withdraw her objection to the permit application before September 30. And, if not, he would like to know what concerns remain.

Thank you.

We met with Town of Kersey and they will support the north access so we will change the access for the pit traffic to the north. We also confirmed with our vibration monitoring consultant that a permanent vibration monitor will work and Ogilvy River Farm, LLC is willing to install one near the propane tank and have it setup where we can download the information and have the vibration monitoring consultant review provide it to all parties.

Please let us know when you could be available to discuss.

Stacey –

We spoke with Dawn Anderson in regard to the access and Weld County will support the north access but she indicated we needed to also get approval from the Town of Kersey since they annexed the road we are accessing onto. We have provided information to Danna Ortiz (Planner for Town of Kersey) and we are waiting for a response from her on the north access. Our traffic engineer has also contacted the Town of Kersey's engineer and is waiting for information back in regard to his traffic study and the north access. As soon as I get a response back from the Town I will let you know.

I did get in contact with the vibration monitoring folks and they are providing pricing back on a permanent unit as well as temporary monitoring costs. We will let you know as soon as we have some more information hopefully next week.

Hi Stacey,

As I understand it, a condition of the permit would be Todd's provision of the vibration monitoring system, and the land use permit (via Weld County and/or the Town of Kersey) would require access from the north.

We can provide a draft agreement that would commit Todd to these two items. In exchange, Ms. Smith would withdraw her objection to the DRMS permit and commit to not objecting to the land use permit.

Please let me know if we should provide a draft agreement. Thanks.

Good morning, Brandon.

My client is not ready to withdraw her objections at this point. We would prefer to have something more concrete than the willingness to "pursue access" to the north. Further, my client is considering an independent engineering evaluation to address her concerns and has been advised by a potential engineer that engaging them would be most advisable following the state's review.

Thank you,

Hi Stacey,

It appears that Todd Bean and J.C. York have addressed your client's primary concerns regarding the mining permit for Ogilvy River Farm's property.

First, Mr. Bean will pursue access from ORF's easement to north of Ms. Smith's property. Second, ORF will install a permanent vibration monitoring system to address Ms. Smith's concerns regarding her propane tank. Third, Mr. York provided information that should alleviate her concerns regarding archeological items in the area to be mined.

Mr. Bean would like to know if Ms. Smith intends to withdraw her objection to the permit application before September 30. And, if not, he would like to know what concerns remain.

Thank you.

Stacey –

We met with Town of Kersey and they will support the north access so we will change the access for the pit traffic to the north. We also confirmed with our vibration monitoring consultant that a permanent vibration monitor will work and Ogilvy River Farm, LLC is willing to install one near the propane tank and have it setup where we can download the information and have the vibration monitoring consultant review provide it to all parties.

Please let us know when you could be available to discuss.

Subject: Re: [EXTERNAL EMAIL]Fwd: Ogilvy River Farm Pit - DRMS Permit Objection Comment

Good morning, All.

I wanted to follow up on our discussion to see where we are with the follow up items. Has there been any progress on any of the items we discussed that your team was going to follow up on?

Thank you,

Stacey L. Shea

Ms. Smith –

Mr. Brock Bowles with the DRMS gave me your e-mail address so I wanted to send you the objection comment responses we provided to him and also see if you had availability to meet and discuss the objection comments and responses on Wednesday July 24th (we are available anytime that day), Thursday July 25th (after 3:30 PM), or Friday July 26th (between 8:00 AM and 11:00 AM). Todd and I are both available during those times.

Regards,

J.C.
